Bee's Ancestry Far More Troublesome Than His Sting

If Forrest Hopkins of Circleville Route 2. has a buzzing sound in his ears he has a perfectly good reason. The ex-GI is nursemaid to approximately 6,750,000 honey bees located in nine apiaries throughout the county.

The beekeeper, who works for Charles Bangham of Lancaster, admits the most difficult part of his job is not handling the "little stingers" but explaining the rather dubious ancestral lineage of the queen, worker and drone bees.

Figuring the parentage of a drone bee is more confusing then the late musical hit, "I'm My Own Grandpa," Hopkins declares.

Seems the drone, and this is hard to explain, has no father but does boast of a legitimate grandfather. This conclusion is reached because the drone is the result of an unfertilized egg.

Hopkins says it goes like this: The queen bee came from a fertilized egg, so she had to have a father. The drone, being the result of an unfertilized egg, therefore has no father, making the queen's father a grandfather to the drone. Follow?

Hopkins says this, brain-wracking conclusion was reached by a German beekeeper who might possibly have got his honey processes mixed with the age-old art of Prussian brewing.

But back to the simplified business of beekeeping. Hopkins says he helps Bangham care for some 450 colonies of bees. Each colony, he relates, consists of an average 75,000 queens, workers and drones.

Once a year, the bees begin making honey.

While the queen bee sits at home laying eggs, the little worker bees make thousands of trips to the nectar pots in clover and dandelions to collect the juice.

Once the nectar is deposited in the honey comb, another section of workers stand by to flap their wings to evaporate the moisture in the nectar and the result is—honey.

Each bee colony averages about 75 pounds of honey per year. The honey season this year is expected to run between June 15 and July 15.

Beekeepers wearing face masks must make regular checks to see if a colony is queenless, remove dead bees and for feeding purposes. Hopkins said his bees consume about three tons of domestic sugar per year.

He admits he is stung more than frequently while working around his buzzing charges, but passes it off as an occupational hazard.

The worker bee has an average lifespan of about six weeks while the queen will live about two years, the beekeeper disclosed.

"But," Hopkins shrugged his shoulders, "that's a bee's life."

Italy Warns Reds

Major Reforms Are Promised

ROME, April 22—Premier Alcide de Gasperi told Italian Communists to cease their threats of violence today and promised major reforms which might even include collective farming.

The victorious premier for the first time outlined in full detail the program he has framed to perpetuate Christian government in the wake of Communism's resounding electoral defeat.

De Gasperi, his moderate government backed by an absolute parliamentary majority for the first time, served notice of a more severe official attitude toward Communism.

He demanded that the Communist party give up its hidden stocks of arms and cease speaking of coming internal tension.

The premier's remarks were directed at Communist Chieftain Palmiro Togliatti, who declared earlier that the Christian Democratic victory at the polls was due to the "triple pressure and threats of American warmongers, the Church, and the capitalists."

• • •

DE GASPERI ridiculed Togliatti's assertion and added:

"Togliatti's great mistake is that he didn't take into consideration the maturity of the Italian people."

The slim, black-haired anti-Communist leader reviewed the results of the elections for some 500 foreign correspondents who had come to cover the polling, and the threatened Communist revolt.

"I don't believe in any coming tension at all," he said.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

We are making considerable progress toward the better life. A new atom weapon and red shoes for men are recent developments.

Also there is a prediction that men will be wearing ermine top coats and getting their hair waved in another few years. The dream of a strong America come true at last.

The injection of music into politics also is refreshing and we look for harmony in the White House no matter who is elected.

Sen. Taft announces that he plays piano, Mrs. Dewey is taking singing lessons and a new number on the stands is "Marching Along With Henry Wallace."

The Wallace song is sung to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic". . .not "I Walk Alone" as some catty Democrats and Republicans have suggested. If this keeps up, Musical Digest will have to take on a political reporter.

THREE FAMOUS HEROES of World War II acknowledge the tremendous ovation accorded them by thousands of Texans at San Antonio. The spectators had lined the banks of the San Antonio river to witness the "entry of King Antonio XXVI," in celebration of the Battle of San Jacinto, when a float came by bearing Gen. Walter Krueger (rising from chair) and rear, saluting (l. to r.): Lt. L. T. Page, Adm. Nimitz' aide; Adm. Chester Nimitz, and Gen. Jonathan Wainwright.

66-GROUP AIR ARM ASKED

Senate Panel Warming Up To Forrestal Compromise

WASHINGTON, April 22 — Defense Secretary Forrestal's compromise defense program calling for a 66-group Air Force and a "state of relative readiness" won guarded Senate support today.

Members of the Senate armed services committee, starting to work at once on the new proposal, voiced their approval of Forrestal's plan to reactivate and modernize 11 groups of planes now in storage.

There also were indications the senators are swinging away from Universal Military Training and toward a substitute through strengthening the National Guard and organized reserves.

Sen. Baldwin, (R) Conn., an armed services member, called the 66-group Air Force program the "right approach".

• • •

SEN. MAYBANK, (D) S. C., a committee backer of the Air Force bid for a 70-group plan, predicts the armed services members will accept the compromise.

Maybank said Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, retiring Air Force chief, recognized that it was vital to build up the Army in expanding the Air Force.

Forrestal's final recommendation, backed by the joint chiefs of staff, would give the armed forces a new authorized strength of 1,795,000 men and add only $481 million to President Truman's original supplemental request.

The new program would bring the fiscal 1949 defense budget to 14 billion 480 million dollars.

Mr. Truman and Forrestal last month asked that the original $11 billion budget be boosted by an even $3 billion, to provide a 55-group Air Force and a total of 1,734,000 men.

Forrestal told the Senate committee that the compromise program probably would mean expenditures in fiscal 1950 of $15 billion, rising to $16.5 billion in fiscal 1951.

Baby Black Mart Charge Denied

LOS ANGELES, April 22—Operation of a black market in selling unwanted babies born to unwed mothers was denied today by two elderly women.

The Los Angeles district attorney's office charged Mrs. Marie Chaplin, 51, and her distant cousin, Idabel Drucker, 53, obtained babies for $100 to $200, then sold them for as high as $1,200.

Both women were arraigned yesterday. Bail was set at $2,500 each. The district attorney's office said evidence of "sale of human beings" would be presented before the grand jury next Tuesday.

Boeing Walkout Halts Production On Plane Order

SEATTLE, April 22—Work on hundreds of planes for the U. S. Air Force was halted today by a strike of 14,000 employes of the Boeing Aircraft Co., here.

Threatened with delay by the walkout were 201 high priority Air Force planes and rush orders for jet bombers.

The walkout, called to enforce demands for a 30-cent hourly pay increase, followed closely the plea of Defense Secretary Forrestal for prompt creation of a 66-group Air Force.

Picket lines were established at the huge Seattle Boeing plants and swing shift workers left their posts to join the pickets at 12:30 a. m., (PST), the time set for the strike.

A few "graveyard" shift work in the hope that a last-minute settlement had been effected were turned back by the pickets.

Federal conciliators were closeted with union and company representatives to within a few minutes of the strike deadline.

Truman Campaign Starts In June

WASHINGTON, April 22—President Truman will open his campaign for four more years in the White House with a trip to the West Coast early in June.

The White House officially announced today that Mr. Truman has accepted an invitation to speak at the University of California commencement at Berkeley on June 12.

Miners Head Back To Coal Pits

Lewis Awaiting Friday Decision

WASHINGTON, April 22—A substantial resumption of work was seen in the soft coal fields today as John L. Lewis prepares for a new fight on pensions for his 400,000 miners.

Local union officials reported that the men are flocking back to the pits and ending a protest strike launched after Lewis and the UMW were fined $1,420,000 for criminal contempt of court.

The 68-year-old union leader faces sentencing in federal court tomorrow on a civil contempt conviction and would risk further heavy penalties if the strike still continued.

Moreover, the temporary anti-strike order—which Lewis and the union were convicted of violating—has been supplanted by a preliminary injunction to assure future peace in the bituminous mines.

• • •

ON THE PENSION front, the issue which touched off the original 29-mine shutdown and brought about the court proceedings, there were two major developments.

Lewis called a meeting of the trustees of the miners' welfare fund this afternoon to implement the compromise pension plan agreed to by himself and Sen. Bridges, (R) N. H., neutral trustee.

Ezra Van Horn, operators' trustee, who voted against the compromise plan, filed suit in federal court to prevent any payments to miners under it.

Bridges became a trustee at the instigation of House Speaker Joe Martin, (R) Mass., and on April 12 submitted his proposal calling for $100-a-month pensions to miners aged 62 with 20 years service who retired on or after May 29, 1946.

Bridges' plan provided for an early meeting of the trustees of the $32 million welfare fund

Taft, Stassen Continue Drives For Ohio Votes

TOLEDO, April 22—Harold E. Stassen carried his campaign for 23 of Ohio's 53 Republican presidential convention delegates into Toledo today on the heels of his appeal to party members to "vote on the issues" and not make the campaign "an intra-party fight."

In Dayton last night, the former Minnesota governor viewed his contest with the Ohio GOP's favorite son candidate, Sen Robert A Taft, as a "crucial" test on a "major divergence of positions" with the party.

He declared there was "almost constant disagreement" between himself and Taft on major questions of domestic and foreign policy.

Russia Rapping U.S. Plan To Quiet Palestine

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., April 22—Russia took the lead today in opposing United Nations approval of a United States plan to establish a temporary trusteeship over Palestine.

The Soviets are expected to do all in their power to block an American effort to hand its proposal over to the UN trusteeship committee and thereby win implied UN approval of the plan.

The U. S. has submitted to the 58-nation political and security committee of the general assembly a resolution recommending that the UN trusteeship committee study the American document concerning Palestine.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko hastily mobilized the support of Poland, Bielo-Russia, the Ukraine and Yugoslavia in an effort to thwart a vote which would send the issue to the trusteeship committee.

Big Steel Refuses Grant Pay Hike

PITTSBURGH, April 22—CIO President Philip Murray announced today that the United States Steel Corp. has denied the CIO-United Steelworkers union "a just and much-needed wage increase."

Almost simultaneously Benjamin F. Fairless, president of "Big Steel," disclosed that prices for a "wide variety" of its steel products would be reduced May 1.

Criticizing the steel company for refusing a pay boost, Murray indicated there would be no steel strike. He said:

"The union has agreed on a two-year no-strike contract. We will live up to that contract."

300 Arab Casualties Counted

Haganah May Drive Against Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, April 22 — Jewish assault forces won control of most strategic points leading to Haifa's waterfront today after a savage nightlong battle that cost 300 Arab casualties.

Haganah and Irgun Jewish army forces again joined hands to launch the Haifa attack after British military units had moved out to the harbor to supervise and protect evacuation of British nationals.

The Jews called upon the Arabs to lay down their arms and deport "all foreign fighting elements" from strategic Haifa, pipeline terminus and Palestine's finest port.

It was learned in Jerusalem that any direct threats to British lines of communication in Haifa will be met with strongest measures including possible imposition of martial law.

BRITISH security forces in Jerusalem were alerted against the possibility of a similar Haganah drive against the Holy City.

As ECA's chief European representative, Harriman will supervise the distribution of $5.3 billion in supplies to be spent among the Marshall Plan nations this year.

Legal Tiff Hinted In New Filing

A legal battle is hinted over the $500 estate of J. Perry Stoltz in a petition filed in Pickaway County probate court by J. L. Stoltz, executor, asking how the cash proceeds shall be distributed.

The executor's petition states Clara Stoltz, widow of the late J. Perry Stoltz, has laid claim to the money. However, the paper points out, she also had an action for divorce filed against her husband in Franklin County common pleas court at the time of his death.

Other claims for the money come from a sister and brother-in-law of Mr. Stoltz, the record discloses.

The sister is asking for $448.11 which she says she spent for funeral expenses and the brother-in-law wants $75 he said was expended for Mr. Stoltz's care before he died.

De Gasperi said his government plans to procede at once to build on it.

Togliatti, in a statement to the Communist newspaper Unita, said that the "eight million votes cast for the Popular Front will result in the mightiest barrier against foreign imperialists."

His defiance was uttered as De Gasperi went ahead with plans to farm a new "victory" government, based on the parliamentary majority won by Christian Democrats in the weekend elections.

THE PREMIER pledged himself to work for land and other reforms which will "guarantee the order and discipline necessary for recovery."

The election victory which gave the Christian Democrates undisputed control in the chamber of deputies and major representation in the senate handed a severe blow to Communist efforts to gain control in Italy through the ballot box.

The 57-year-old Harriman agreed during a meeting with Mr. Truman to step down from cabinet rank to the No. 2 post in this country's program to stop Communism and put Europe on its feet economically.

ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman, who said Harriman was his first choice for the job, termed the veteran government official the "ideal man." Hoffman said:

* * *

"THIS IS MORE than just an appointment, the success of the undertaking depends to a large degree on the caliber of the man who is roving ambassador . . .Mr. Harriman fits the qualificiations."

As ECA's chief European representative, Harriman will supervise the distribution of $5.3 billion in supplies to be spent among the Marshall Plan nations this year.

Legal Tiff Hinted In New Filing

A legal battle is hinted over the $500 estate of J. Perry Stoltz in a petition filed in Pickaway County probate court by J. L. Stoltz, executor, asking how the cash proceeds shall be distributed.

The executor's petition states Clara Stoltz, widow of the late J. Perry Stoltz, has laid claim to the money. However, the paper points out, she also had an action for divorce filed against her husband in Franklin County common pleas court at the time of his death.

Other claims for the money come from a sister and brother-in-law of Mr. Stoltz, the record discloses.

The sister is asking for $448.11 which she says she spent for funeral expenses and the brother-in-law wants $75 he said was expended for Mr. Stoltz's care before he died.

The unit will be run primarily with electric, but it has a gasoline emergency power plant.

Partition Suit Asks Settlement

A partition suit was placed on file in Pickaway County common pleas court by John W. Junk of Mt. Sterling requesting a settlement against four defendants on a tract of land in Derby.

Named as defendants were G. W., O. W., E. H., and David Whitlock each of whom reportedly hold one-tenth interest in the real estate, while Junk is the holder of an undivided three-fifths interest.

Junk has asked the court to locate the defendants and appear in court for a settlement.

Italian Reds Get Warning

Togliatti, in a statement to the Communist newspaper Unita, said that the "eight million votes cast for the Popular Front will result in the mightiest barrier against foreign imperialists."

His defiance was uttered as De Gasperi went ahead with plans to farm a new "victory" government, based on the parliamentary majority won by Christian Democrats in the weekend elections.

* * *

THE PREMIER pledged himself to work for land and other reforms which will "guarantee the order and discipline necessary for recovery."

The election victory which gave the Christian Democrates undisputed control in the chamber of deputies and major representation in the senate handed a severe blow to Communist efforts to gain control in Italy through the ballot box.

RED OR BLACK INK?

Ag Agent Stresses Need For Planning Alertness

"Waiting for crop yields to drop before building your soil is like calling the fire department after your house has burned down," Larry Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent, said Thursday.

"The time to build up your soil is when crop yields are high," he declares. "That gives you immediate as well as long-range benefits. It increases your profit margin at current farm price levels, even though they have slumped from the postwar peak. It will give you a good living when the present record-breaking demand for food decreases and prices are definitely lower.

"Production costs such as seed, plowing and cultivation are about the same whether your yields are high or low. Thus it costs twice as much per unit to produce a 50-bushel crop as it does a 100-bushel crop. That can spell the difference between red or black ink in either good or bad times. Which yield you get depends largely on the soi mlanagement methods you use.

"Good soil management means more than putting fertilizer into the ground. It means replacing organic matter burned out by too many crops of corn and grain and too few crops of deep-rooted legumes. It means rebuilding broken-down soil structure and improving tilth and workability. It means increasing the soil's capacity to absorb rain and deliver moisture to your crops. It means using conservation methods that will keep the soil from washing away once you have built it up."

Best said statistics show that Ohio farmers used 775,512 tons of fertilizer in 1947. This was an increase of 45,250 tons over 1946.

Fertilizer use in Ohio has more than doubled since 1938, the figures show. In that year 324,228 tons were used.

For the United States as a whole, fertilizer use has increased at the rate of more than a million tons a year since prewar days.

Farmers used approximately 16½ million tons in 1947, compared with an average of 7½ million tons in the 1935-39 period.

"This greatly increased demand," Best added, "is due largely to farmers' increasing awareness that they are selling soil fertility every bushel of grain, every pound of meat and milk they market. They realize that their soil's virgin storehouse of plant nutrients is running low and must be restocked."

Mayflower Kin Planning Meet

CINCINNATI, April 22 — Ohio Descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers will hold their golden anniversary meeting here April 30 and May 1.

Mrs. Richard Thompson Keys of Glendale, said the program will include rededication of the ideals and principles of religious liberty enunciated in the Mayflower Compact. She is lieutenant governor of the Cincinnati Colony of the Society of Mayflower Descendants.

Speakers at the sessions will include Maj. Gen. Carl F. Gray Jr., administrator of veterans' affairs; Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, and Former Gov. Myers Y. Cooper of Cincinnati. Cooper is a descendant of Edward Doty, one of the Pilgrim fathers.

The western range lands, comprising almost 728 million acres in 17 western states, support for a part of each year almost 75 per cent of the sheep in the United States, and more than 50 per cent of the beef cattle. But not quite 100 million acres, or less than one-seventh of the Western range area, are in satisfactory condition.

Aviation Cadet Plan Offered By Air Force

Young men, veterans and non-veterans, who can meet the high requirements of the United States Air Force, can apply for aviation cadet training now in the class opening July 1, S-Sgt Lloyd J. Williams of the local Army recruiting station said Thursday.

Applicants must be 20 to 26½ years old, unmarried, with two or more years of college, or be able to pass an equivalent education examination. Candidates also must be of sound physique and in excellent health.

Aviation cadet training requires 12 months and upon its completion graduates are commissioned as second lieutenants in the Air Force Reserve, and placed on active duty with the U. S. Air Force. They may, if they wish to make the Air Force a career, apply for a Regular Air Force commission.

An aviation cadet is paid $75 a month, plus food, clothing, housing, medical and dental care. A $250 clothes allowance is given upon graduation. A second lieutenant on flying pay receives $336 a month if single, $372 a month if married.

What To Do For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse, bubbled-over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked to eat—didn't know what indigestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances the "old stomach and the ever-changing blood" need help. Now you may again release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Draft Law Likely To Be Approved

House Panel Poll Shows 3-1 Edge

WASHINGTON, April 22—President Truman's request for new draft legislation appears likely to receive an overwhelming vote of approval from the House armed services committee.

The committee is regarded as certain to approve, probably within the next 10 days, a bill providing for the induction into the armed services of men aged 19 through 25.

A committee poll revealed that of the 33 members on the group, 13 of those who could be reached said they will vote for the legislation, three will vote against and four are undecided.

Estimates are that the draft bill sponsored by Rep. Andrews, (R) N. H., committee chairman, might receive as many as 25 votes, a better than 3 to 1 majority.

* * *

IF THE BILL is reported out by the committee next week, it may be called up in the House by the leadership the following week. The committee plans to complete its public hearings this week and begin closed sessions on the bill next Tuesday.

The Andrews bill also sets a ceiling of two million six thousand officers and men for the armed services, an increase of 621,500 men over the existing strength of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Men aged 19 through 30 would be required to register for the draft. The administration originally had requested that men through 44 be registered.

The Senate armed services committee has voted to limit registration to men of draftable ages.

The Senate committee has completed its public hearings and is now discussing its bill behind closed doors. No decision has yet been reached on whether to report out a one-package bill containing both Selective Service and UMT, as requested by the armed services.

In early Roman days the color yellow was used only for dyeing bridal garments.

450 Democrats Pay $25 A Plate, Hear Miller Vs. Lausche Applause

COLUMBUS, April 22 — Ohio Democrats, 450 of them, splurged last night—at 25 bucks a plate.

Therefore, their fund-raising Jackson-Jefferson Day banquet was a success.

A Connecticut senator, Brien McMahon, told them the Marshall Plan was "a purchase of time" and that "what we do with that time will determine if we are to have a third world war or peace."

It didn't seem to interest the cash customers greatly.

They showed more concern as to the relative amounts of applause received by those bitter political enemies and opponents for the Democratic nomination for governor, Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche and Ray T. Miller.

* * *

MILLER WON. His adherents apparently bought more tickets.

The former Cleveland mayor also was the man who didn't come to dinner. He didn't show up until 9:50 p. m., nearly three hours after the dinner was scheduled to start.

Miller had been out telling three Columbus political rallies that the state's primary roads, the ones that carry the biggest traffic, ought to be built around cities and not through them.

Lausche agreed to pose for a picture with Miller. But the latter, who refused once before, refused again.

Lausche didn't seem worried. He radiated confidence that he would win the May 4 primary. So did Miller. It was that kind of a meeting.

The dinner itself was a far cry from the good old days when Former Gov. A. V. "Vic" Donahey, as state auditor, made a reputation by refusing to honor a voucher which listed a 40-cent baked potato.

* * *

LAST NIGHT'S potato cost several times that amount. But it was there.

So was roast beef and a couple of fancy side-saddle dishes. But not $25 worth. The Democratic state organization paid the hotel $5 a plate for the meal. The other $20 was profit.

So, excluding deadheads like newsmen and other free-mealers, the dinner produced a profit of more than $8,000 to finance the operation of state headquarters for two more years.

Compensation Law Applies To Musicians, Rule

Band leaders whose orchestras are engaged to play at hotels and dance halls are independent contractors and are subject to the Ohio Unemployment Compensation Law if they hire three or more persons, reports C. C. Thomas, manager of the local bureau of unemployment compensation.

The decision was in line with a recent United States supreme court ruling.

The court had held that the band leader, and not the establishment which purchases the services of a band, is the actual employer of band personnel.

The ruling reverses opinions previously held in Ohio that the establishment and not the band leader is required to pay the unemployment compensation tax.

The decision was made in allowing a benefit claim appealed by an unemployed musician who had named three band leaders as his employers. The claim had originally been denied on the grounds that the musician had not worked for employers covered by the Ohio law.

Banks Held Liable For Stop Checks

Waiver Said Not Full Defense

COLUMBUS, April 22—The waivers which depositors must sign relieving a bank of responsibility if a "stopped" check is cashed inadvertently were ruled invalid by the state supreme court today.

The court held that the waivers were not in themselves a defense against a suit and did not relieve a bank of its duty to act in good faith and to exercise reasonable care in complying with a "stop payment" order.

The court refused, however, to rule on who was responsible in the case of a stopped check paid by an Akron bank. The case was sent back to the Summit County common pleas court.

Vassil Speroff, of Akron, ordered a $60 check stopped the same day he drew it.

* * *

ACTING UNDER Ohio law, the bank required him to sign the waiver which stipulated that the bank "will in no way be responsible" if a stopped check is inadvertently cashed.

The check was cashed, and Speroff sued to hold the bank responsible.

In defense, the First Central Trust—now the First National Bank—cited the waiver and also contended that it had exercised good faith and reasonable care with respect to the stop order.

The common pleas court threw out Speroff's suit, but the ninth district court reversed and rendered final judgment for Speroff.

In modifying the appellate court decision, the court held the waiver "void for want of consideration and as against public policy" and that it "does not relieve the bank of its duty to act in good faith and to exercise reasonable care in complying with such a (stop) order."

The high court thus upheld the appellate court ruling that the waiver did not constitute a good defense.

* * *

HOWEVER, the supreme court held that the court of appeals erred in granting final judgment to Speroff because the bank had stated a good defense in alleging it had exercised good faith and reasonable care, and that it had a right to be heard in the trial court on that issue.

IS THIS THE

"Sweetest riding story ever told"?

SOMETIMES we get just a bit upset over our engineers.

A cautious bunch, their tendency toward understatement now and then lets us overlook some mighty good bets.

About all they wanted to say about their new Hi-Poised power was that it went much further than anything else they knew toward controlling engine vibration frequencies.

They let us say it would make engine sensation "practically imperceptible."

That it would do away with a lot of shudder that often passes for clutch chatter. That it would "have an effect" on riding softness and quiet.

Well! Folks have now had a chance to try out our '48 beauties with Hi-Poised power—and you should hear what they say!

"Sweetest ride of any car," they tell us.

"Such smoothness—it's unbelievable!" "What have you done?—It's wonderful!"

What we did was apply a wholly new system of engine mounting.

It's a system that suspends the engine, much as in a cradle. This leaves it free to rock, bob or "wag its tail" (as every engine must)—yet maintains firm control of such movement at all times and speeds.

Add this to other things—big, soft tires on extra wide Safety-Ride rims; gentle coil springs on all four wheels; ample size and weight to master jounce and jitter—and what do you get?

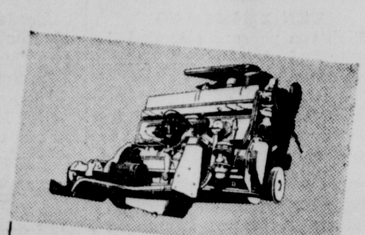

A definitely "sweeter" feel to the whole car. Soft, level going—with firm, sure footing. Lightness—with positive and dependable control.

In a phrase—"the sweetest riding story ever told," as it has been put.

Naturally, we'd like to have you size up our new Vibra-Shielded ride too.

After all, there's more to any car than meets the eye, even in this eye-winning beauty. And maybe this sweet and lovely ride is just what you've been waiting for.

Better see your Buick dealer, whether or not you have a car to trade—and get your order in.

SECRET OF THE VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE

Two fat cushions of special composition, and placed with scientific accuracy, suspend the Buick engine at the points where vibration is most readily controlled. A third new mounting at the rear completes a precise system of controlling engine vibration frequencies. The result is to shield the entire car against vibration build-up and make a noticeably smoother ride.

Banks Held Liable For Stop Checks

Waiver Said Not Full Defense

COLUMBUS, April 22—The waivers which depositors must sign relieving a bank of responsibility if a "stopped" check is cashed inadvertently were ruled invalid by the state supreme court today.

The court held that the waivers were not in themselves a defense against a suit and did not relieve a bank of its duty to act in good faith and to exercise reasonable care in complying with a "stop payment" order.

The court refused, however, to rule on who was responsible in the case of a stopped check paid by an Akron bank. The case was sent back to the Summit County common pleas court.

Vassil Speroff, of Akron, ordered a $60 check stopped the same day he drew it.

* * *

ACTING UNDER Ohio law, the bank required him to sign the waiver which stipulated that the bank "will in no way be responsible" if a stopped check is inadvertently cashed.

The check was cashed, and Speroff sued to hold the bank responsible.

In defense, the First Central Trust—now the First National Bank—cited the waiver and also contended that it had exercised good faith and reasonable care with respect to the stop order.

The common pleas court threw out Speroff's suit, but the ninth district court reversed and rendered final judgment for Speroff.

In modifying the appellate court decision, the court held the waiver "void for want of consideration and as against public policy" and that it "does not relieve the bank of its duty to act in good faith and to exercise reasonable care in complying with such a (stop) order."

The high court thus upheld the appellate court ruling that the waiver did not constitute a good defense.

* * *

HOWEVER, the supreme court held that the court of appeals erred in granting final judgment to Speroff because the bank had stated a good defense in alleging it had exercised good faith and reasonable care, and that it had a right to be heard in the trial court on that issue.

SERVICE DISSENSION

IF IT is true that the armed forces of the United States are in a dangerously weakened condition, a substantial factor in this weakness probably has been the jealous bickering and competition which continues to go on among the services. When this dissension becomes public, as it has in the matter of the current ambitions of the Air Force, the weakness is advertised to the world.

In the past, with only two services instead of three, there has been wasteful duplication of procurement, supply and operating functions. The present squabble aired before Congress is an example of the way service differences interfere with planning. The secretary of defense and his subordinate secretaries as a group decided that a 55-group air force was the proper size for balance with the other services. The secretary for air, obviously dissenting from that decision, continues to plead directly with Congress for a 70-group force.

Everyone knew that the "unification" of the services last year did not unify them at all, but actually created a third independent service, the Air Force. The Department of Defense was set up superior to the three to provide a planning and coordinating agency at cabinet level. If the services are still to carry their own plans to Congress in disagreement with the over-all planning, of what service to the nation is the Department of Defense?

THE WEAKER SEX

AMERICA'S purses increasingly are controlled by women. According to figures in a recent This Week magazine article by Ray Bethers, women own 70 percent of the national wealth, and spend a higher percentage than this of the money that goes for food and clothing. They own almost half the country's estimated 30 million homes, almost half the total railroad stock.

A good many conclusions can be drawn from such figures. It is true that women have not themselves created all of this wealth that they control. Many homes are put in the wife's name; stocks and other resources often are inherited from husbands and fathers. On the other hand the assets they handle are not used exclusively by women. They are the purchasers, managers for others in their families, both male and female.

Industry has recognized for a long time that women are the nations' buyers, and has directed sales appeals to them. Have women themselves been aware of their power, their responsibility? Not only in economic matters but in the whole range of civic affairs, it is time women realized that their status in modern society carries privilege and opportunity, but also tremendous obligation.

It seems as if the great natural forces—fire and water—are determined lately to assert their prerogatives more than usual.

FLYING is a grand way to travel, but doctors are telling some of their patients to take it easy.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Thus far, nothing much has come out of the canvass for the presidency. No particular issue has been raised except by Henry Wallace, who has adopted an unmodified pro-Russian orientation even to the extent of opposing not only the official policy of his own country but its right to maintain a separate non-Marxist existence.

From Dewey, Taft, Stassen, Truman, Eisenhower, Vandenberg and Martin—not an inspiring syllable, not a word to lift the spirit of the American people, not an idea for the correction of the great evils that were born out of grievous errors! The campaign so far is personal; the debate ad hominem.

Stassen, who demonstrates some personal popularity, carefully avoids a sentence that speaks more than an oft-repeated and carefully tested cliche and changes his theme in accordance with the most recent headlines. He has been able to spend enormously, devoting himself to the sole task of winning a nomination to which he is neither by experience nor intellectual attainments fitted. It cheapens the Presidency to spend so much to get it; that was done for Wendell Willkie, and the vulgarity of the Philadelphia convention will not soon be forgotten. No other candidate has such a fund as Stassen threw into Wisconsin, where he won against MacArthur. If only money talks, Harold Stassen will be nominated and an extraordinarily large number of Republicans will vote for either Truman as the lesser of two evils or for Henry Wallace in protest.

But Stassen's opponents have done little more than gripe. Here we are in a crisis, more acute, more permanently serious than any Franklin D. Roosevelt ever faced or invented. It is no longer a question of isolationism or internationalism, of defeating the Nazi or saving the British empire. It is a question of saving our civilization, which we can lose even without a fighting war. Yet, those who presume to aspire to the Presidency speak of trivialities, follow the polls, hit out at what is momentarily unpopular. They dare not or know not how to strike at the heart of the problem, which is:

Shall the American civilization, which has been developing on this continent for three hundred years and which achieved the greatest productivity man has ever known in an atmosphere of the widest recognition of the inalienable rights of the individual man, survive or become abortive when challenged by the creative force of the Eurasian Civilization stimulated by the immoral and anti-Christian Marxist creed?

In a word, is Americanism worth fighting for?

Many find this too challenging, too tough to answer. It arouses them from an intellectual lethargy into which the Jazz Age of the 'Twenties swept them; it arouses them from the comforts of the easy slogans of pro- and anti-New Deal which occupied them during the 'Thirties; it forces them to understand, and therefore to study, why they oppose Communism and to acknowledge a decade of lying by men in high places.

The challenge creates a world of pleasantness. It insists that the so-called liberal comes out from behind his smirk to exhibit the shallowness of his soul. It makes it too late to speak political platitudes, and forces moral law into every political consideration. It makes compromise impossible because compromise between Western Civilization and Eurasian Marxism is impossible. No bridge can be manufactured which will close that gap, stated by ancient Job and restated in Goethe's Faust. It is the problem of God and the Devil. And what politician wants to take that on?

"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE THEM PAY MORE

IT IS USUALLY a mistake to let your opponents play a contract of only 1-No Trump or two of a suit, if you are the player with whom the bidding would close and you have at least an average hand containing a suit of four cards or more which your partner is likely to fit. This is especially so if they have bid all three of the other suits, so that your partner is extra likely to have a number of cards in yours. Then a takeout double or a bid by you will either take the contract away from the other fellows or else make them pay more to get it, by means of a bid higher than they like.

Two of Atlanta's best were in the North-South seats on this tournament deal—Mrs. Wilkinson Wagar in the North and Henry Chanin in the South. When East let the bidding die at just 2-Clubs, Mr. Chanin leaped to action. Hearts not having been bid, he could see the high probability that his partner had four or more of them, and he had a slightly better than average hand, including a very well-placed spade K, to the left of the spade bidder.

Making such a logical overcall—or being prepared to—protects a fellow's partner from having to risk a weak overcall in the North position and also makes possible an occasional trap pass which produces a lot of points. In this case, however, the bid of hearts was marked as the preferred action by South.

An extra trick resulted after East played his A on the lead of the spade 5, covered by the 6. After that, Mr. Chanin proceeded to take everything except two clubs and a diamond to get a splendid score, as the opponents made their contracts at most tables.

SYNOPSIS

Anne Forester had become engaged to Lieutenant Commander Alec Doremus following a whirlwind courtship in Hawaii over a year ago. Recently he had cabled her from the Far East to be ready to marry him soon at Stone House, his family's estate in Jersey. Julia, his mother, was overjoyed when Anne accepted her invitation to stay with them. Her departure from New York was a blow to cynical Donald Ogden, who had long been in love with her. Stone House had been in the Doremus family for generations and the beauty of its acres of model farmlands thrilled Anne as John, Alec's serious-minded older brother, explained all it meant to him. Besides John, his wife, Helen and Judy, their small daughter, the household consisted of Alec's parents, Julia and Henry Doremus; Henry's mother, "Gram" Doremus, and Julia's mother, Madame Kingsley. Dinner was almost over when Helen, who commuted daily to her job in a New York publishing house, arrived home. Later, she stopped in Anne's room to chat before retiring and was extremely annoyed when John interrupted to tell her Judy was crying.

CHAPTER EIGHT

JOHN turned into the room, still not looking at Anne. She waited until he had gathered up the shaker and Helen's glass; then, as he started past her, she held out her own. He stopped and took it and met her look squarely at last.

She did not know what she had expected to see but certainly not that cool inscrutability. It was like a dash of water in her face. Yet she heard herself saying, a trifle breathlessly, "I wanted to ask you something."

"Yes? What?"

"Your mother—— When we were talking before dinner, she urged me to stay after Alec returns. Live here, I mean. Do you—do you think she meant it?"

"I'm sure she did. She's a very sincere person."

"She said you could use Alec's help." It was more an inquiry than a statement but she did not wait for him to answer. She went on, still with that feeling of breathlessness, as if she were being pushed. "How do you think it would be?"

"I think the question is not that but whether you want to stay."

"Oh, I do!"

"You sound very sure."

She knew what was pushing her now. She had to make up to him for Helen. For her indifference to Stone House and to his activities here, and to little Judy. It was silly, perhaps, but she had to do it. She said, "I am. I——" She sought for precisely the right words. "I could put roots down here. I want to put roots down."

For a moment he made no answer. He just stood there, his eyes driving into hers. Then he said shortly, "That's for you to decide." And he went out, closing the door with a firm click behind him.

* * *

It was three weeks later and Anne was up in the third floor apartment of Stone House into which she had moved with all of her possessions only a few days ago. If anyone had told her, when she had arrived here, that she would do such a thing, she would never have believed them. But it had all happened quite naturally.

"Inevitably," she corrected herself, moving to straighten a picture she had just hung on the wall. Yes, inevitably was the word.

The picture straightened, she looked around to see what remained for her to do. Her books in the bookcase, her Venetian glass collection in the cabinet, the curtains, then she would be through. And since Alec wasn't due until Heaven knew when now, there was no hurry. She had been tearing like a madman, anyway, as if her very life depended on getting everything in order at once. She would rest a minute and smoke a cigarette.

She curled up on the day bed, ash tray in her hand, and looked around.

She liked it. She liked the sloping walls and the casement windows. She liked the yellow flowered wallpaper and the green painted floor. Her things had fitted in well. The day bed here for Alec, her maple desk, the maple drop leaf table where they could have breakfast or supper, and her single bed and dresser in the little bedroom adjoining. There was plenty of closet space, too, and with their own bath and the small two-burner electric plate hidden behind a folding screen in a corner, they would have almost as much independence as if they were in their own home.

Her mind went back to the way it had all worked out. To the morning after her arrival, for it had already begun then.

She had wakened early there in Alec's room, and had slipped from bed to go look at the world outside her window. Such a beautiful world! In the night frost had touched some of the trees on the hills and the hills were dressed as for a party in their gayest raiment. Over the fields a diamond coverlet of dew had been spread and every little drop was dancing in the sunlight. Closer by, the barns glowed warmly red and she could see the cows moving in a long, leisurely line out of an open door down to the pond pasture. Suddenly she had wanted to be out there, too, so she had tossed on her clothes and made her way quietly down the back stairs. She would explore the farm.

She had met Auntie just coming up the path from her house, her dusky face wreathed in a smile, her coal black eyes bright as shoe buttons, her blue gingham dress crisp and clean as soap and starch could make it. She had not been able to contain herself until Anne spoke first, but, bobbing her gray head, she had stopped and said, "You our Miss Anne. Mm! Mm! What a purty Mist' Alec done pick for hisseff, sho' nuff."

Anne had talked there for a few minutes with the old woman, feeling herself being weighed and measured by those quick scrutinizing eyes, feeling the wealth of goodness and loyalty that dwelt within that brown body, and then Nick had appeared, bent and slow and respectful, and behind him Annabel, indifferent and airy and not so respectful, and behind her two grinning barefoot scamps, all on their way to the kitchen.

"I mustn't keep you," Anne had said then, and had gone on.

She had gone through gates and along paths and over fields, following her fancy, until, eventually, she had come on John and the dogs. The dogs had seen her first and had bounded toward her, and then John had risen up from a rock behind a clump of bushes and had stood waiting for her, the oddest expression on his face, as if he couldn't believe his eyes.

He had said, "What in the world are you doing out here at this hour!"

"I had to come. It was so lovely!"

He had made no reply for a moment. Then he had smiled and asked her if she would like to go over the farm with him. He was on one of his usual prowls, checking up on this and that, he explained, and if she cared to go along——

She did. And it might have been the beauty of that early hour or it might have been John's way of telling her, but talking with him, listening to him, had made Stone House and all it meant come sharply clear to her.

She hadn't known, until then, what a big plan it was and how many people it embraced. For, in a co-operative undertaking, financed and managed by him, four families, more than twenty people, were being sheltered and fed there. There were, besides the Doremus household, Auntie and Nick and their family, also a returned veteran and his wife and three children living in a cottage in the hollow, and, finally, two young lads fresh from an agricultural college who made their home in a trailer.

"I have more than five hundred acres here," John told Anne. "So I need as much help as that. For instance, I need an expert mechanic like Tom. He got his training in the Army. And I need someone who understands animal husbandry as Charley does. And I need young huskies like Bob and Jimmy for all the general work. In fact, I'll be glad when Alec gets here. I need him, too, for the buying and selling end. He'll make a good contact man, I think, if—"

"If what?"

"Nothing."

There was silence for a moment. Then Anne said hesitantly, "It must all be a pretty expensive proposition for you to carry, though, isn't it?"

"Oh, yes, it's that, all right."

Volunteer or Wait for Draft? That's 18-Yeur-Olds' Problem | With Draft Bill in Congress Eighteeners Face Alternatives

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—For 18-year-old boys, the year 1948 makes men of them. They face grave decisions. Running through the minds of every 18-year-old boy and his parents are a lot of questions prompted by the forthcoming draft bill certain to be passed by Congress.

Should he volunteer now and not wait a year or so for the draft? What are the advantages? Should he gamble Congress will not pass the draft? Or that an emergency will no longer exist? How about education? By 18, most boys are fresh out of high school and thinking of college.

Washington

These questions were put to men in Washington who should know the answers.

The consensus was: Enter college if possible. There will be opportunities to complete a four-year education and to become an officer. If one is unable to enter college, the alternatives are to enlist or wait to be drafted.

"It doesn't make much difference either way," said the men on Capitol Hill. "By enlisting, the young man has a better choice of the branch of service he prefers. The choice may be limited if he is inducted."

According to the bill, no exemptions will be made if you joined the National Guard or the reserves after the president's speech on March 17, when he called for a draft. However, this may be changed on the floor.

"This draft is going to be written by the Congress, not by the Army or Navy," one member of the House armed services committee has said.

Here are some facts about the three alternatives for an 18-year-old:

1—If the 18-year-old enters college, he can try to join the ROTC or the NROTC. He can choose his course, but he will add some Army or Navy courses. Part of his tuition will be paid. Chances of deferment are greater. By signing a contract that he will give two active years to the service upon graduation, he can be exempt until he completes the four-year college course.

The Navy has a Holloway Plan which is open to exceptionally bright NROTC men. The full college tuition is paid and a course similar to the Annapolis course is followed at selected universities. Two years' service upon graduation is required.

2—If the 18-year-old enlists, he can choose the Army, Navy, Air Forces, or Marines. (The Coast Guard requires parents' consent up to 21.)

Training in all branches is somewhat similar. There is a basic training period as a buck private. Pay is $75 a month, plus maintenance. At the end of the basic training, aptitude tests are given. From these examinations, he is given some choice in selecting a special training: radar, baking, radio, cooking, mechanics or to be sent to officers' training school.

Enlistment Has Its Benefits

3—If the 18-year-old waits to be drafted, he may find the branch of service he prefers is filled up. A choice, however, is given if conditions permit. Basic training will be the same as he would get by enlisting. He will also be screened for his specialty, including officers' candidate school.

SERVICE DISSENSION

IF IT is true that the armed forces of the United States are in a dangerously weakened condition, a substantial factor in this weakness probably has been the jealous bickering and competition which continues to go on among the services. When this dissension becomes public, as it has in the matter of the current ambitions of the Air Force, the weakness is advertised to the world.

In the past, with only two services instead of three, there has been wasteful duplication of procurement, supply and operating functions. The present squabble aired before Congress is an example of the way service differences interfere with planning. The secretary of defense and his subordinate secretaries as a group decided that a 55-group air force was the proper size for balance with the other services. The secretary for air, obviously dissenting from that decision, continues to plead directly with Congress for a 70-group force.

Everyone knew that the "unification" of the services last year did not unify them at all, but actually created a third independent service, the Air Force. The Department of Defense was set up superior to the three to provide a planning and coordinating agency at cabinet level. If the services are still to carry their own plans to Congress in disagreement with the over-all planning, of what service to the nation is the Department of Defense?

THE WEAKER SEX

AMERICA'S purses increasingly are controlled by women. According to figures in a recent This Week magazine article by Ray Bethers, women own 70 percent of the national wealth, and spend a higher percentage than this of the money that goes for food and clothing. They own almost half the country's estimated 30 million homes, almost half the total railroad stock.

A good many conclusions can be drawn from such figures. It is true that women have not themselves created all of this wealth that they control. Many homes are put in the wife's name; stocks and other resources often are inherited from husbands and fathers. On the other hand the assets they handle are not used exclusively by women. They are the purchasers, managers for others in their families, both male and female.

Industry has recognized for a long time that women are the nations' buyers, and has directed sales appeals to them. Have women themselves been aware of their power, their responsibility? Not only in economic matters but in the whole range of civic affairs, it is time women realized that their status in modern society carries privilege and opportunity, but also tremendous obligation.

It seems as if the great natural forces—fire and water—are determined lately to assert their prerogatives more than usual.

FLYING is a grand way to travel, but doctors are telling some of their patients to take it easy.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Thus far, nothing much has come out of the canvass for the presidency. No particular issue has been raised except by Henry Wallace, who has adopted an unmodified pro-Russian orientation even to the extent of opposing not only the official policy of his own country but its right to maintain a separate non-Marxist existence.

From Dewey, Taft, Stassen, Truman, Eisenhower, Vandenberg and Martin—not an inspiring syllable, not a word to lift the spirit of the American people, not an idea for the correction of the great evils that were born out of grievous errors! The campaign so far is personal; the debate ad hominem.

Stassen, who demonstrates some personal popularity, carefully avoids a sentence that speaks more than an oft-repeated and carefully tested cliche and changes his theme in accordance with the most recent headlines. He has been able to spend enormously, devoting himself to the sole task of winning a nomination to which he is neither by experience nor intellectual attainments fitted. It cheapens the Presidency to spend so much to get it; that was done for Wendell Willkie, and the vulgarity of the Philadelphia convention will not soon be forgotten. No other candidate has such a fund as Stassen threw into Wisconsin, where he won against MacArthur. If only money talks, Harold Stassen will be nominated and an extraordinarily large number of Republicans will vote for either Truman as the lesser of two evils or for Henry Wallace in protest.

But Stassen's opponents have done little more than gripe. Here we are in a crisis, more acute, more permanently serious than any Franklin D. Roosevelt ever faced or invented. It is no longer a question of isolationism or internationalism, of defeating the Nazi or saving the British empire. It is a question of saving our civilization, which we can lose even without a fighting war. Yet, those who presume to aspire to the Presidency speak of trivialities, follow the polls, hit out at what is momentarily unpopular. They dare not or know not how to strike at the heart of the problem, which is:

Shall the American civilization, which has been developing on this continent for three hundred years and which achieved the greatest productivity man has ever known in an atmosphere of the widest recognition of the inalienable rights of the individual man, survive or become abortive when challenged by the creative force of the Eurasian Civilization stimulated by the immoral and anti-Christian Marxist creed?

In a word, is Americanism worth fighting for?

Many find this too challenging, too tough to answer. It arouses them from an intellectual lethargy into which the Jazz Age of the 'Twenties swept them; it arouses them from the comforts of the easy slogans of pro- and anti-New Deal which occupied them during the 'Thirties; it forces them to understand, and therefore to study, why they oppose Communism and to acknowledge a decade of lying by men in high places.

The challenge creates a world of pleasantness. It insists that the so-called liberal comes out from behind his smirk to exhibit the shallowness of his soul. It makes it too late to speak political platitudes, and forces moral law into every political consideration. It makes compromise impossible because compromise between Western Civilization and Eurasian Marxism is impossible. No bridge can be manufactured which will close that gap, stated by ancient Job and restated in Goethe's Faust. It is the problem of God and the Devil. And what politician wants to take that on?

MAKE THEM PAY MORE

IT IS USUALLY a mistake to let your opponents play a contract of only 1-No Trump or two of a suit, if you are the player with whom the bidding would close and you have at least an average hand containing a suit of four cards or more which your partner is likely to fit. This is especially so if they have bid all three of the other suits, so that your partner is extra likely to have a number of cards in yours. Then a takeout double or a bid by you will either take the contract away from the other fellows or else make them pay more to get it, by means of a bid higher than they like.

Two of Atlanta's best were in the North-South seats on this tournament deal—Mrs. Wilkinson Wagar in the North and Henry Chanin in the South. When East let the bidding die at just 2-Clubs, Mr. Chanin leaped to action. Hearts not having been bid, he could see the high probability that his partner had four or more of them, and he had a slightly better than average hand, including a very well-placed spade K, to the left of the spade bidder.

Making such a logical overcall—or being prepared to—protects a fellow's partner from having to risk a weak overcall in the North position and also makes possible an occasional trap pass which produces a lot of points. In this case, however, the bid of hearts was marked as the preferred action by South.

An extra trick resulted after East played his A on the lead of the spade 5, covered by the 6. After that, Mr. Chanin proceeded to take everything except two clubs and a diamond to get a splendid score, as the opponents made their contracts at most tables.

SYNOPSIS

Anne Forester had become engaged to Lieutenant Commander Alec Doremus following a whirlwind courtship in Hawaii over a year ago. Recently he had cabled her from the Far East to be ready to marry him soon at Stone House, his family's estate in Jersey. Julia, his mother, was overjoyed when Anne accepted her invitation to stay with them. Her departure from New York was a blow to cynical Donald Ogden, who had long been in love with her. Stone House had been in the Doremus family for generations and the beauty of its acres of model farmlands thrilled Anne as John, Alec's serious-minded older brother, explained all it meant to him. Besides John, his wife, Helen and Judy, their small daughter, the household consisted of Alec's parents, Julia and Henry Doremus; Henry's mother, "Gram" Doremus, and Julia's mother, Madame Kingsley. Dinner was almost over when Helen, who commuted daily to her job in a New York publishing house, arrived home. Volunteer or Wait for Draft? That's 18-Year-Olds' Problem | With Draft Bill in Congress Eighteeners Face Alternatives

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—For 18-year-old boys, the year 1948 makes men of them. They face grave decisions. Running through the minds of every 18-year-old boy and his parents are a lot of questions prompted by the forthcoming draft bill certain to be passed by Congress.

Should he volunteer now and not wait a year or so for the draft? What are the advantages? Should he gamble Congress will not pass the draft? Or that an emergency will no longer exist? How about education? By 18, most boys are fresh out of high school and thinking of college.

Washington

These questions were put to men in Washington who should know the answers.

The consensus was: Enter college if possible. There will be opportunities to complete a four-year education and to become an officer. If one is unable to enter college, the alternatives are to enlist or wait to be drafted.

"It doesn't make much difference either way," said the men on Capitol Hill. "By enlisting, the young man has a better choice of the branch of service he prefers. The choice may be limited if he is inducted."

According to the bill, no exemptions will be made if you joined the National Guard or the reserves after the president's speech on March 17, when he called for a draft. However, this may be changed on the floor.

"This draft is going to be written by the Congress, not by the Army or Navy," one member of the House armed services committee has said.

Here are some facts about the three alternatives for an 18-year-old:

1—If the 18-year-old enters college, he can try to join the ROTC or the NROTC. He can choose his course, but he will add some Army or Navy courses. Part of his tuition will be paid. Chances of deferment are greater. By signing a contract that he will give two active years to the service upon graduation, he can be exempt until he completes the four-year college course.

The Navy has a Holloway Plan which is open to exceptionally bright NROTC men. The full college tuition is paid and a course similar to the Annapolis course is followed at selected universities. Two years' service upon graduation is required.

2—If the 18-year-old enlists, he can choose the Army, Navy, Air Forces, or Marines. (The Coast Guard requires parents' consent up to 21.)

Training in all branches is somewhat similar. There is a basic training period as a buck private. Pay is $75 a month, plus maintenance. At the end of the basic training, aptitude tests are given. From these examinations, he is given some choice in selecting a special training: radar, baking, radio, cooking, mechanics or to be sent to officers' training school.

Enlistment Has Its Benefits

3—If the 18-year-old waits to be drafted, he may find the branch of service he prefers is filled up. A choice, however, is given if conditions permit. Basic training will be the same as he would get by enlisting. He will also be screened for his specialty, including officers' candidate school.

Local Garden Clubbers Hear Of Plant Study Made By Bennett Kellys

Mr., Mrs. Pontius Hosts To Group

Members and guests of the Circleville Garden Club met Wednesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pontius, West High street, with Mrs. Orion King presiding.

The host presented Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Kelly from Washington C. H. Mrs. Kelly related their experiences of "botanizing" in every county in the state of Ohio. She urged the group to further their study of plant life and said "it's a real pleasure to know and recognize the various plants."

Among the numerous plants discussed by Mrs. Kelly was the common dandelion, which "is the highest developed plant in the kingdom." In conclusion she named the plants in her two miniature gardens including the "one choice violet—American Dog Violet (Violia Compressa) the rarest violet known." Another of local interest was the Bird foot (bi-color), "the aristocrat of the violet family."

In her second garden she said are all wild flowers including the "Pine Tree Club Moss which is a rare favorite". The Kellys are well-known botanists and have collected more than 300 specimens in their gardens.

Mrs. George Welker read a paper on "You Can't Fool A Plant". Reports of the regional meeting in Lancaster were related by Mrs. King and Miss Mattie Crum.

Local Women Take Part In State Meet

The annual convention of Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs opened in Columbus Thursday and was expected to schedule a hot debate—on a fragile wildflower known as the Spring Beauty.

Seems some of the delegates want to put force on the legislature to adopt the Beauty as Ohio's official flower, in place of the Scarlet Carnation. They claim the carnation isn't native to Ohio and doesn't grow well here, while the Beauty performs admirably.

It's storied that delgations from Canton, Akron and other neighboring tows are attending the convention for the specific purpose of trampling down the Beauty.

They like the Carnation because it was named in memory of one of Canton's greatest admirers of the flower—William McKinley. Some delegates hope the matter won't even come up.

Mrs. Joseph Bell, Mrs. Sterling Poling, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. Frank Perry, Mrs. Henry Helwagen, Mrs. Charles Mowery Jr., Mrs. James Price, Mrs. Fred Grant, Mrs. William Steele and Mrs. Willis Liston, all delegates of the Circleville Junior Women's Club were to attend the Thursday sessions.

On the program were addresses by Dr. Floyd Faust and Col. M. Thomas Tchou, an Ohio writers panel and tea in the Ohioana Library.

Ten members of the local Junior Women's Club attended "Junior Day" on Wednesday held in connection with the convention.

Among the speakers at the Wednesday session was Mrs. Ray W. Davis of Circleville, state chairman of legislation; Mrs. Richard S. Horan, extension secretary for junior clubs in the general federation; and Mrs. C. E. M. Finney, president of the Ohio Federation.

Mrs. Howard Martindale of Youngstown, state president of the Junior Club, presided. At the close of the meeting the group was invited to tea in the governor's mansion.

Bogota Talk Puts Finger On Commies

Heated Debate Now Underway

BOGOTA, April 22—The proposal by the United States and three leading South American countries that nations of the Western Hemisphere unite to "impede and uproot" Communism aroused vigorous discussion in Bogota today.

The proposal was submitted jointly to the Inter-American conference by the United States, Brazil, Chile and Peru.

Members of the U. S. delegation are said to feel that the conference—disrupted by Colombia's recent Leftist revolt—will approve the resolution unanimously.

But other sources believe that, while the conference will adopt an anti-Communist declaration, it may be a modified version.

The resolution asked the American nations to unite in "fervent condemnation" of all forms of totalitarianism—with emphasis on "international Communism, which violently destroys civil rights and liberties and replaces them with tyranny."

* * *

IT ALSO advocates social and economic policies designed to raise living standards, which are admittedly very low in some Latin American countries.

Principal criticism of the resolution has been that it does not lay enough emphasis on this.

Many delegates argued that poverty and lack of economic development are the breeding grounds of Communism.

They asked for U. S. economic aid to enable Latin America to begin an effective campaign in this direction.

U. S. Delegate William D. Pawley answered some of these contentions when he expressed U. S. approval of a proposal to hold Western Hemisphere conference similar to the Paris conference on the Marshall Plan.

Termites Get Blame For Old Sink In 200-Block, North Court Street

It took 12 Circleville service department workers, a six-foot deep ditch and the city's new $1,500 air compressor to learn that termites had undermined a section of the road in the 200-block of North Court street.

Service Director Joseph Rooney said his workmen had discovered logs, which were used for filler when an old ditch was closed under the road, were eaten away by termites causing a sink in the street in front of The Circleville Herald.

At first, Rooney believed the underground fault may have been quicksand or soft earth which was giving way under pressure of traffic.

Workmen Thursday began laying a concrete footer which will be filled over with a wall of sand to act as a brace. Rooney said as soon as the repairs on the west side of the street are complete, work will begin immediately on the east side.

The service director said he believes the ditch was an old outlet from a tanning bark plant located years ago on Watt street.

When work is completed in the 200 block of North Court street, Rooney's workmen will move to the 100 block to repair a sink in front of the New American hotel.

Toledo Women Hit Meat Prices

TOLEDO, April 22—A new chain-telephone campaign to bring meat prices down began here today.

Mrs. L. J. Senn, president of the Housewives League, Inc., said the group voted last night to adopt the program which is similar to one conducted very successfully several months ago.

Mrs. Senn said housewives would be asked to refrain from purchasing meat products "at the outrageous prices which are being asked since Monday when prices on all products jumped 10 cents a pound."

LOUIS ON 2 COMMITTEES

Half Of State Legislators On Planning Commission

Almost half of the members of the 97th General Assembly are thus far working without pay on one or more of the 13 committees of the Ohio Postwar Program Commission. The exact percentage is 44.5, according to Columbus officials.

Pickaway County's representative, Herbert E. Louis of New Holland, is serving on two of the commission's 13 committees — agriculture and drainage.

Of the 164 members of the General Assembly, 74 serve the commission. Thirty-one of the 36 elected senators and 43 of the 128 representatives are working on these committees. (139 representatives were elected but 11 have died.)

In addition to the 74 members of the legislature, 193 other men and women, business and professional people, teachers, farmers, persons from many walks of life, also are serving the state on these research committees.

THE COMMISSION was created by the legislature, originally to set up a program of state work to be done when the war ended. It has been renewed by two sessions of the Legislature to take on research and study jobs, make recommendations to the governor and to the General Assembly, and to serve as an unbiased guide for proposed legislation.

The Commission did the preliminary work in obtaining Cambridge General Hospital, cost free, from the army. It also made the study which resulted in obtaining part of the Scioto Ordnance Depot at Marion, also cost free, as an annex to the Boys Industrial School.

"People who work on these committees, Legislators and private citizens alike, are doing a great service for the State of Ohio," Sen. R. R. Walcutt, chairman, said.

"They are giving their time and their best judgment, uncolored by political pressure, during the time when the General Assembly is not in session. There is no doubt in my mind that their recommendations lead to better-balanced legislation," he added.

So far this biennium, the 13 committees have studied problems having to do with the following subjects: Agriculture, aviation, beach erosion, blind and deaf education, state building code, conservation of natural resources, drainage laws, highway planning and financing, labor relations, local library financing, penal institutiona, state office space and equalization of real estate valuation for taxation purposes.

Veterans Urged To Check On NSLI Beneficiary

Veterans who still retain the protection furnished by National Service Life Insurance were advised Thursday to make certain that current beneficiary appointments are correct.

James P. Shea, Pickaway County veterans service officer urged all veterans to make certain the Veterans Administration has the latest information on their choice of beneficiaries.

Shea explained that many servicemen who were married after they joined the armed forces neglected to change their insurance beneficiaries.

"This sometimes results", he pointed out, "in the widow and children of a veteran being deprived of insurance benfits, because the veteran forgot to change his benficiary."

* * *

UNDER THE LAW, VA can disburse insurance proceeds only to the person duly designated by the insured veteran. In those instances where the veteran fails to change beneficiaries after being married, his family often suffers.

"Another point for all veterans to remember centers around the lump sum payment of their insurance proceeds", Shea noted. NSLI is payable in a lump sum only if such a settlement is elected by the insured. VA cannot pay insurance benefits to a beneficiary in a lump sum unless the insured veteran specifically indicates he desires that type of settlement in the event of his death, Shea declared.

Flood-Damaged Homes Eligible For FHA Loans

Property owners in Southern Ohio, who have suffered damage to their properties as a result of recent floods, were invited by A. L. Guckert, district director, Federal Housing Administration, to make full use of FHA Title 1 repair loans to restore their properties to normal.

"Lending institutions located in most towns affected by the flood are approved under a contract of insurance to grant Title 1 loans for repairs," Guckert stated, "and ample funds should be available for loan purposes for making repairs to these properties."

Loans up to $2,500 for the repair of existing structures are made available by FHA Title 1 with provisions for up to three years to repay.

"Persons requiring loans to complete the repairs to their flood-damaged properties should contact their nearest bank or lending institution and obtain full details of the FHA Title 1 repair loans," Guckert said.

The announcement was made by Lynn K. Korndorff, president of the dry dock company, a subsidiary of United States Steel.

Korndorff said the sale price represented the depreciated book value of the shipbuilding yard and its principal facilities.

Missouri, Idaho, Utah, Oklahoma and Kansas are the leading lead producing states of the U. S.

LOUIS ON 2 COMMITTEES

Half Of State Legislators On Planning Commission

Almost half of the members of the 97th General Assembly are thus far working without pay on one or more of the 13 committees of the Ohio Postwar Program Commission. The exact percentage is 44.5, according to Columbus officials.

Pickaway County's representative, Herbert E. Louis of New Holland, is serving on two of the commission's 13 committees — agriculture and drainage.

Of the 164 members of the General Assembly, 74 serve the commission. Thirty-one of the 36 elected senators and 43 of the 128 representatives are working on these committees. (139 representatives were elected but 11 have died.)

In addition to the 74 members of the legislature, 193 other men and women, business and professional people, teachers, farmers, persons from many walks of life, also are serving the state on these research committees.

VICIOUS DISEASES SHOWN

'Off-The-Record-Itis' Gets Workout In Washington

WASHINGTON, April 22—Members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors who were here last week to attend their annual convention were exposed to two of the most vicious diseases which ravage capital reporting.

They are "ghost-osis" and "off-the-record-itis."

Most of the visiting editors of course, had lived through literal epidemics of two maladies at one time or another in their careers, and some still were being exposed to both every day back home.

But few places in the country have the contagions spread to the extend they have in Washington.

The recent convention exposures came in two classic, almost simultaneous examples — from President Harry Truman.

Addressing a total of more than 800 persons, including the editors, their guests and regular Washington correspondents, the President delivered a fairly lengthy prepared speech.

* * *

THEN HE WENT "off the record" and talked for another 15 minutes or so.

Never was the effect of "ghost-osis" more clearly demonstrated. It was as though two different men had been speaking. The first was the lecturer, the actor, the man reading from a prepared script. The second was a sincere person, talking from the heart and holding his audience with every slow, thoughtful word he uttered.

Although the President undoubtedly edited and approved his official speech, there was no doubt—from the choice of phraseology—that it was largely ghost-written. Equally obvious was the fact that his impromptu speech was couched in terms of his own choosing.

The difference in applause alone left not the slightest doubt that the audience vastly preferred the words of Harry Truman to those of his ghost-writers. Further, it gave many of them their first real glimpse into the mind of the man who was their President.

But while "ghost-osis" makes it difficult for the people of the country to really know the men who are their leaders, equally deadly is this "off-the-record-itis."

* * *

FOR EXAMPLE, when the President said his impromptu speech was off the record, he merely meant that it was not to be printed. He did not mean that his listeners could not repeat what they had heard to others.

As a result, those 800 who heard him have been happily telling friends and acquaintances what he said. It is quite safe to say that thousands of people now know almost exactly what he said during that unofficial 15-minute speech. Which makes it rather ridiculous that the rest of the country—and the world—should not also know.

As a matter of fact, although those present will keep their word, eventually it will be printed and it will be broadcast—by someone who was not even present.

When such stories are passed far enough by word-of-mouth, eventually the tellers forget to repeat that they are relating off-the-record stuff. Or else they tell it as rumors. In any case, it sounds good to the guy who wasn't there, particularly if he happens to know the President, for then it will have the ring of authenticity.

So, often quite innocently, he will pass it along, as a story, a column or a newscast—and the persons who were present will be penalized!

Croman Outfit Mentioned In Magazine Story

How Sterley Croman and Son, Circleville Route 4, guard against poultry diseases is told in an article in the May issue of Capper's Farmer magazine.

"When they prepare a house for a new flock of chickens," the story in the farm magazine points out, "they make sure there is no diseases carryover.

"Cleaning is done with a high-pressure steam sterilizing machine that has power enough to rip manure loose from floors, blow it out of cracks and force live steam into any crevice where germs might lurk.

Forest Croman, junior member of the partnership, says that with the sterilizer, ceilings and walls may be cleaned as easily as floors.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Homer Does Some "Back-Seat Sewing!"

Homer Bentley's missus was working on her new sewing machine, when Homer comes in, draws up a chair, and starts talking: "Don't you think you're running too fast?" he says. "Slow down! Watch out! Be careful!"

When the missus finally turns with murder in her eyes, Homer says goodnaturedly: "I thought you might like a little help, dear—like you help me drive the car."

The missus can't help but burst out laughing—and they settle what might have been a quarrel over a friendly glass of beer. The missus agrees to give up back-seat driving and nagging Homer about ashes on the rug. Homer agrees to quit criticizing Sarah's taste for flowery hats and parsley salad.

From where I sit, the key to getting on together is meeting every issue half way—and overlooking any petty differences in tastes—whether these tastes apply to beer or flowery-looking hats!

VICIOUS DISEASES SHOWN

'Off-The-Record-Itis' Gets Workout In Washington

WASHINGTON, April 22—Members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors who were here last week to attend their annual convention were exposed to two of the most vicious diseases which ravage capital reporting.

They are "ghost-osis" and "off-the-record-itis."

Most of the visiting editors of course, had lived through literal epidemics of two maladies at one time or another in their careers, and some still were being exposed to both every day back home.

But few places in the country have the contagions spread to the extend they have in Washington.

The recent convention exposures came in two classic, almost simultaneous examples — from President Harry Truman.

Addressing a total of more than 800 persons, including the editors, their guests and regular Washington correspondents, the President delivered a fairly lengthy prepared speech.

* * *

THEN HE WENT "off the record" and talked for another 15 minutes or so.

Never was the effect of "ghost-osis" more clearly demonstrated. It was as though two different men had been speaking. The first was the lecturer, the actor, the man reading from a prepared script. The second was a sincere person, talking from the heart and holding his audience with every slow, thoughtful word he uttered.

Although the President undoubtedly edited and approved his official speech, there was no doubt—from the choice of phraseology—that it was largely ghost-written. Equally obvious was the fact that his impromptu speech was couched in terms of his own choosing.

The difference in applause alone left not the slightest doubt that the audience vastly preferred the words of Harry Truman to those of his ghost-writers. Further, it gave many of them their first real glimpse into the mind of the man who was their President.

But while "ghost-osis" makes it difficult for the people of the country to really know the men who are their leaders, equally deadly is this "off-the-record-itis."

* * *

FOR EXAMPLE, when the President said his impromptu speech was off the record, he merely meant that it was not to be printed. He did not mean that his listeners could not repeat what they had heard to others.

As a result, those 800 who heard him have been happily telling friends and acquaintances what he said. It is quite safe to say that thousands of people now know almost exactly what he said during that unofficial 15-minute speech. Which makes it rather ridiculous that the rest of the country—and the world—should not also know.

As a matter of fact, although those present will keep their word, eventually it will be printed and it will be broadcast—by someone who was not even present.

When such stories are passed far enough by word-of-mouth, eventually the tellers forget to repeat that they are relating off-the-record stuff. Or else they tell it as rumors. In any case, it sounds good to the guy who wasn't there, particularly if he happens to know the President, for then it will have the ring of authenticity.

So, often quite innocently, he will pass it along, as a story, a column or a newscast—and the persons who were present will be penalized!

Local 2-Year-Old Is Entered In Ohio Fair Race

Among the 124 horses entered in the early closing events at the Ohio State Fair, Aug. 28 to Sept. 3, is Ellen Van, chestnut sorrel, by George W. Van Camp, 850 North Court Street, Circleville, in the 2-year-old Trot Sept. 1.

In addition to five stake races, four of them with $2000 purses and one with a $1,500 purse, 13 overnight races will feature the state fair speed card, according to State Fair Manager Edwin J. Bath. Total purses this year have been increased to $24,500.

Racing will start Aug. 30 for a five day meeting ending Sept. 3.

The best filled class was the 2-year-old State Treasurer's Stake Pace scheduled for Sept. 2, which drew 32 nominations. On the same afternoon, Gov. Thomas J. Herbert will present the Governor's Trophy to the winner of a field 22 entries in the 3-year-old trot.

McQuillar Gets Nod Over Ohioan

COLUMBUS, April 22—Bobby McQuillar of Chicago was installed as an 8-to-5 favorite today for tonight's ten-round boxing bout with Ohio Lightweight Champion Willie Russell of Columbus.

The bout at Columbus will be the second between the two fighters. McQuillar won a unanimous decision over Russell last Summer after being floored by the hometown boy in the first round. McQuillar, at 135, is expected to be a pound heavier than Russell.

LATE START HURTS

Few Major Loop Pitchers Able To Stay Distance

NEW YORK, April 22—Major league pitching was on relief today, a harsh indictment against baseball's self-imposed regulation forbidding organized Spring training prior to March 1.

First-line pitchers, handicapped by the late start and the annual rookie sifting, protested recently that they might not be ready to travel nine innings during the first weeks of the 1948 campaign. Yesterday the moundsmen offered Exhibit "A."

In six contests, only two starters finished unaided, and only one, George Munger of the St. Louis Cardinals, comported himself with big league finesse.

Munger snaked his crackling fast ball and curve past Cincinnati Redleg batters for a five-hit, 5-to-2 triumph that kept the Cards undefeated along with the Philadelphia Phillies.

* * *

JOHNNY Vandermeer, Redleg starter, gave up 12 walks and left in the eighth inning.

The Phillies kept pace with St. Louis by dint of a 13-inning 4-to-3 conquest of the Boston Braves. Neither starting pitcher—Bill Voiselle or Schoolboy Rowe—was around at the finish of the season's first diamond marathon.

It was pitching's mortal sin—wildness, that lost the game. Philadelphia scored the winning run without a hit.

Brave Southpaw Ernie White surrendered three walks and a wild pitch with one out, and Rookie Granville Hamner, lofted a run-scoring fly for the win.

Mickey Haefner, southpaw knuckleball artist for the Washington Senators was clipped for nine hits, including Joe DiMaggio's 440-foot homerun, but he managed to survive nine innings as the Senators won 6 to 3.

Senator outfields came up with five standout catches to keep Haefner out of trouble.

* * *

ROOKIE Gil Coan cracked a three-run round-tripper in five-run third frame, an explosion which hastened the exit of Vic Raschi.

Dizzy Trout, the Tiger "big five", couldn't check the Chicago White Sox. Trout was breezing toward a 3-to-0 shutout but the Sox crashed through for three runs in the seventh.

Lefty Overmire relieved Trout, the Tigers clipped Earl Harrist for a run on Hoot Evers' third straight single, and Detroit racked up its second win without loss, 4 to 3.

Hank Borowy, Cub right-hander almost coasted in on homeruns by Bill Nicholson and Andy Pafko (with one on), but "Blisters" weakened in the ninth and Bob Chipman came in to secure the Cubs' 6 to 3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants staged a three-hour-plus donnybrook in which the Dodgers employed a record-breaking 24 players, hit three homeruns, got 11 hits, but lost the ball game 9 to 5.

Arky Vaughan hit two homers (one inside the park) and Outfielder Carl Furillo clubbed another for Brooklyn. Johnny Mize, co-heir to the major league homerun title, smacked one in the second and Sid Gordon, subbing for Bobby Thomson who hurt his leg chasing Vaughan's homer, slugged one in the sixth.

Coaltown Due For Derby Test At Keeneland

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 22—Seven Kentucky Derby eligibles, with Calumet Farm's sensational Coaltown topping the list in his first distance try, are slated to go in today's renewal of the $15,000 added Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland.

With the Derby only nine days away, the eyes of the racing world will be on today's mile-and-one-eighth feature to see if Coaltown, unbeaten owner of a smashing :59 3-5 five-furlong workout at Keeneland two days ago, can go the route, which is only a furlong short of Derby distance.

Second favored to stablemate Citation in advance betting on the May 1 run for the roses, Coaltown must lug 123 pounds today. Another Calumet speedster, the filly Bewitch, leading juvenile moneywinner of 1947, also is slated to go in the Blue Grass today.

Weather Foils AA Card; Only 2 Games Played

By International News Service

The American Association, which supposedly risked wholesale postponements with an early opening of its 1948 season, finally has run into trouble with the weatherman, but not until an entire week of the season has passed.

Cold weather forced postponement of two games last night at Columbus and Indianapolis. Frigid temperatures forced league leading St. Paul to cool its heels in the Hoosier capital, while the Columbus Red Birds were forced to delay their series opener with Minneapolis.

In the two games played, Kansas City edged Toledo, 8 to 7, and Louisville clouted Milwaukee, 5 to 2.

All the scoring in the Kaw-Mud Hen game took place in the first five innings with a five-run spurt by the Blues in the fifth being the payoff. Hank Bauer, Kansas City centerfielder, hit a homerun.

Louisville's victory was the second of the year for Rookie Pete Modica. He spaced out six hits last night.

Connie Says Son, 55, Now Too Old

BOSTON, April 22—Connie Mack, the 85-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced today he was removing his son, Earle Mack, 55, from the first base coaching lines.

Connie said Earle is getting too old for coaching duty. He said Skeeter Webb, a utility infielder will take over Earle's job and the younger Mack will retire to the bench as an adviser.

Circleville Tracksters Top Indians

Locals Grab 10 Of 14 Firsts

Circleville cindermen were none too hospitable to the Hillsboro Indians Wednesday afternoon. The visitors were handed an 85-43 defeat. The victory was Circleville's second in four starts.

Coach Tom Bennett's thinclads allowed the Indians to take only four of the 14 first place honors back to their teepees, two of the four places belonging to Bill Jenike, all-around star of the Indian squad. It was the first year for track activity at the Highland County school.

Dave Crawford, endurance runner for the Red and Black, again copped the most first place positions for the Tigers by tying Jenike's mark of two first places.

Best mark in any event of the meet was set by Jenike, who hurled the discus a little over 124 feet, three feet further than the record at the SCOL meets at Wilmington, which stands at 121.

Next Tiger track meet is to be held Friday when the Washington Blue Lions invade the Circleville track.

Following are the results of Wednesday's meet:

Legion Baseball Squad Stages First Practice

The Circleville American Legion junior baseball team held its first practice in Ted Lewis park Wednesday evening with nearly 30 lads trying out for the squad.

Because of the cold conditions at the park, Manager Leonard Crawford and Coach Dave Waters restricted the first session to limbering-up exercises and some batting practice.

The lads attending the first practice were told that uniforms for the season had been purchased, and are to be grey with red and white trimmings and blue numerals. The rest of the outfit is to consist of red and white stockings and red caps.

Next practice for the lads has been set for Wednesday at the park, or at the Legion home in case of bad weather.

COLUMBUS, April 22—Bobby McQuillar of Chicago was installed as an 8-to-5 favorite today for tonight's ten-round boxing bout with Ohio Lightweight Champion Willie Russell of Columbus.

LATE START HURTS

Few Major Loop Pitchers Able To Stay Distance

NEW YORK, April 22—Major league pitching was on relief today, a harsh indictment against baseball's self-imposed regulation forbidding organized Spring training prior to March 1.

First-line pitchers, handicapped by the late start and the annual rookie sifting, protested recently that they might not be ready to travel nine innings during the first weeks of the 1948 campaign. Yesterday the moundsmen offered Exhibit "A."

In six contests, only two starters finished unaided, and only one, George Munger of the St. Louis Cardinals, comported himself with big league finesse.

Munger snaked his crackling fast ball and curve past Cincinnati Redleg batters for a five-hit, 5-to-2 triumph that kept the Cards undefeated along with the Philadelphia Phillies.

* * *

JOHNNY Vandermeer, Redleg starter, gave up 12 walks and left in the eighth inning.

The Phillies kept pace with St. Louis by dint of a 13-inning 4-to-3 conquest of the Boston Braves. Neither starting pitcher—Bill Voiselle or Schoolboy Rowe—was around at the finish of the season's first diamond marathon.

It was pitching's mortal sin—wildness, that lost the game. Philadelphia scored the winning run without a hit.

Brave Southpaw Ernie White surrendered three walks and a wild pitch with one out, and Rookie Granville Hamner, lofted a run-scoring fly for the win.

Mickey Haefner, southpaw knuckleball artist for the Washington Senators was clipped for nine hits, including Joe DiMaggio's 440-foot homerun, but he managed to survive nine innings as the Senators won 6 to 3.

Senator outfields came up with five standout catches to keep Haefner out of trouble.

* * *

ROOKIE Gil Coan cracked a three-run round-tripper in five-run third frame, an explosion which hastened the exit of Vic Raschi.

Dizzy Trout, the Tiger "big five", couldn't check the Chicago White Sox. Trout was breezing toward a 3-to-0 shutout but the Sox crashed through for three runs in the seventh.

Lefty Overmire relieved Trout, the Tigers clipped Earl Harrist for a run on Hoot Evers' third straight single, and Detroit racked up its second win without loss, 4 to 3.

Hank Borowy, Cub right-hander almost coasted in on homeruns by Bill Nickolson and Andy Pafko (with one on), but "Blisters" weakened in the ninth and Bob Chipman came in to secure the Cubs' 6 to 3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants staged a three-hour-plus donnybrook in which the Dodgers employed a record-breaking 24 players, hit three homeruns, got 11 hits, but lost the ball game 9 to 5.

Arky Vaughan hit two homers (one inside the park) and Outfielder Carl Furillo clubbed another for Brooklyn. Johnny Mize, co-heir to the major league homerun title, smacked one in the second and Sid Gordon, subbing for Bobby Thomson who hurt his leg chasing Vaughan's homer, slugged one in the sixth.

Coaltown Due For Derby Test At Keeneland

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 22—Seven Kentucky Derby eligibles, with Calumet Farm's sensational Coaltown topping the list in his first distance try, are slated to go in today's renewal of the $15,000 added Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland.

With the Derby only nine days away, the eyes of the racing world will be on today's mile-and-one-eighth feature to see if Coaltown, unbeaten owner of a smashing :59 3-5 five-furlong workout at Keeneland two days ago, can go the route, which is only a furlong short of Derby distance.

Second favored to stablemate Citation in advance betting on the May 1 run for the roses, Coaltown must lug 123 pounds today. Another Calumet speedster, the filly Bewitch, leading juvenile moneywinner of 1947, also is slated to go in the Blue Grass today.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 22—Frank Stranahan of Toledo, the favorite, paced the field today in the quarter-final round of the 48th North and South Amateur Golf Tournament here.

Weather Foils AA Card; Only 2 Games Played

By International News Service

The American Association, which supposedly risked wholesale postponements with an early opening of its 1948 season, finally has run into trouble with the weatherman, but not until an entire week of the season has passed.

Cold weather forced postponement of two games last night at Columbus and Indianapolis. Frigid temperatures forced league leading St. Paul to cool its heels in the Hoosier capital, while the Columbus Red Birds were forced to delay their series opener with Minneapolis.

In the two games played, Kansas City edged Toledo, 8 to 7, and Louisville clouted Milwaukee, 5 to 2.

All the scoring in the Kaw-Mud Hen game took place in the first five innings with a five-run spurt by the Blues in the fifth being the payoff. Hank Bauer, Kansas City centerfielder, hit a homerun.

Louisville's victory was the second of the year for Rookie Pete Modica. He spaced out six hits last night.

Connie Says Son, 55, Now Too Old

BOSTON, April 22—Connie Mack, the 85-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced today he was removing his son, Earle Mack, 55, from the first base coaching lines.

Connie said Earle is getting too old for coaching duty. He said Skeeter Webb, a utility infielder will take over Earle's job and the younger Mack will retire to the bench as an adviser.

Circleville Tracksters Top Indians

Locals Grab 10 Of 14 Firsts

Circleville cindermen were none too hospitable to the Hillsboro Indians Wednesday afternoon. The visitors were handed an 85-43 defeat. The victory was Circleville's second in four starts.

Coach Tom Bennett's thinclads allowed the Indians to take only four of the 14 first place honors back to their teepees, two of the four places belonging to Bill Jenike, all-around star of the Indian squad. It was the first year for track activity at the Hillland County school.

Dave Crawford, endurance runner for the Red and Black, again copped the most first place positions for the Tigers by tying Jenike's mark of two first places.

Best mark in any event of the meet was set by Jenike, who hurled the discus a little over 124 feet, three feet further than the record at the SCOL meets at Wilmington, which stands at 121.

Next Tiger track meet is to be held Friday when the Washington Blue Lions invade the Circleville track.

Following are the results of Wednesday's meet:

Legion Baseball Squad Stages First Practice

The Circleville American Legion junior baseball team held its first practice in Ted Lewis park Wednesday evening with nearly 30 lads trying out for the squad.

Because of the cold conditions at the park, Manager Leonard Crawford and Coach Dave Waters restricted the first session to limbering-up exercises and some batting practice.

The lads attending the first practice were told that uniforms for the season had been purchased, and are to be grey with red and white trimmings and blue numerals. The rest of the outfit is to consist of red and white stockings and red caps.

Next practice for the lads has been set for Wednesday at the park, or at the Legion home in case of bad weather.
